VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Metalliferous Veins.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—In perusing your weekly journal of the 9th inst. I observed a paragraph from the Friday's daily issue, under the heading of "City and Province," contributed by a correspondent anent the quartz mines of British Columbia, in which article the writer says: "It may seem strange that in all the course of the Canadian Pacific Railway through British Columbia not a quartz vein has been struck; but I am assured such is the case, &c." Now, sir, I cannot let this assertion pass without refutation, and beg to enlighten your correspondent, who labors, under a misapprehension, that I have examined three figure lodes with distinct fracture and ramifications within an area of less than a mile on the railway cutting—the employes evidently cutting through them and disregarding their presence and geological bearing. I do not feel disposed to give full data respecting the locality and size of lodes, as prevailing circumstances will not permit, but suffice it to say the three veins are heavily charged with mineral carrying favorable prospects for gold and silver, the latter yielding by far the highest per centage, and will open up an industry in the near future, I hope, of some significance. QUARANTINE AGAINST CANADA.

Circular to Customs and Medical officers in Regard to Inspection, Etc.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—A circular approved by the President in regard to the maintenance of quarantine inspections on the northern frontier of the United States has been issued to medical officers of the marine hospital service, customs officers and others concerned. After reciting the quarantine law and its application to the prevention of infection from smallpox brought from the Canadian border, the following orders are made:

First—Until further orders, all vessels arriving from ports in Canada, and trains of cars crossing the border line must be examined by a medical inspector of the marine hospital service before they will be allowed to enter the United States, unless provision shall have been made by state or municipal quarantine laws and regulations for such examination.

Second—All persons arriving from Canada by rail or otherwise, must be examined by such medical inspector before they will be allowed to enter the United States, unless provision has been made for such examinations as aforesaid.

Third—All persons coming from infected districts not giving satisfactory evidence of protection against smallpox, will be prohibited from proceeding into the United States until after such period as the medical inspector or any other sanitary officer duly authorized may direct.

Fourth—Inspectors will vaccinate all unprotected persons who desire or who are willing to submit to vaccination free of charge. Any such persons refusing to be vaccinated shall be prevented from entering the United States.

Fifth—All baggage, clothing and other effects and articles of merchandise coming from infected districts and liable to carry infection, or suspected of being infected, will be subjected to thorough disinfection.

Sixth—All persons showing evidence of having had smallpox or varioloid, or who exhibit a well-defined mark of recent vaccination, may be considered protected, but wearing apparel and baggage of such protected persons who may come from infected districts, or have been exposed to infection, will be subject to thorough disinfection, as above provided.

Seventh—Customs officers or United States medical inspectors will consult and act in conjunction with authorized State and local health authorities, so far as may be practicable, and unnecessary detention of trains or other vehicles, persons, animals, baggage or merchandise will be avoided, so far as may be consistent with the prevention of the introduction of diseases dangerous to public health in the United States.

Eighth—Inspectors will make full weekly reports of services performed under this regulation.

Ninth—As provided in section 5, all quarantine officers or agents acting under any state or municipal system, upon application of the proper state or municipal authorities, are empowered to enforce the provisions of these regulations, and are hereby authorized to prevent entrance into the United States of any vessel or vehicle, person, merchandise, or animals prohibited under the act aforesaid.

Tenth—In enforcement of these regulations there shall be no interference with any quarantine laws or regulations existing under or to be provided by any state or municipal authority.

JOHN B. HAMILTON,
Supervising Surgeon-General of the U. S. Marine Hospital Service.

Approved: DANIEL MANNING, Sec.
Approved: GROVER CLEVELAND, Pres.

A number of prominent business men here have determined to present George Laidlaw, father of the system of branch railroad radiating from here, with a piece of plate before the end of the year, in recognition of the services he has rendered to Toronto and surrounding country. The Mail editorially commends the movement, not only to Toronto citizens, but the inhabitants of Western Ontario.

The swine plague, which committed such ravages in Essex, has made its appearance in Brant county. Already diseased animals on a number of farms have been killed, and the premises have been isolated. The Government inspector is now in the county investigating, and advising the people as to the best methods to prevent the spread of the plague.

[illegible] the system of vaccination as practiced in the Russian army. The subject vaccinated returns at the end of a week and is revaccinated from lymph taken from the pustule produced by the former vaccination. This operation is repeated until the virus no longer takes. The person thus operated on is, when the vaccination is completed, thoroughly protected from the most virulent form of the disease.

The news of the smallpox epidemic in Montreal has caused a sensation in Liverpool, and induced a large number of cabin passengers who intended to come out by the Allan Line to change to the Cunard, so as to land in New York. Instead of leaving 80 first class passengers, as expected, on the Polynesian there were only 30 on the last trip. So frightened were the passengers, after reading the Montreal papers at Queenstown about the smallpox, that every lady on board, as well as some of the gentlemen, got vaccinated.

FROM LYTTON.

Interesting Legal Items—The Assizes—Address to Hon. Justice Walkem and His Lordship's Reply—Practical Hints.

(From our own Correspondent.)

This place has been enlivened for the last two days by the presence of the Supreme Court officials and persons interested in the court sessions. Mr. Justice Walkem opened the assizes two days ago. Three men were tried, two for highway robbery, which turned out to be a trivial affair, for which the offenders got six months, and one for murder, in which the jury gave a verdict of manslaughter with a strong recommendation to mercy. This last case was that of a Norwegian named Erasmus, who was arrested in Victoria on the charge of murdering a man named Wallerstedt, near Eagle Pass, in a row which occurred in one Anderson's saloon. The evidence tended to incriminate some of the men resident in the row, who have since left the country, and to show that while the prisoner had only struck the deceased with his fists in return for gross abuse, the man who had gone had kicked him so brutally as to cause death in five days afterwards. The prisoner was sentenced to five years penal servitude—a punishment which met with the approval of all. Several county court suits were disposed of. A dispute about the right to use the water of Oregon Jack's claim is now being tried before the Judge and a special jury. The trial commenced yesterday and was adjourned till 9 a. m. to-day. Oregon Jack, from whom the creek is named, sues Mr. Langley for $900, for damages alleged to have been done to his crops by his diverting the creek water to use on his own farm. Oregon Jack conducted his own case, and managed it so far very well. His examination by Mr. Eberts created much amusement, every one in court, including the judge, who seems to have a keen relish for humor, being occasionally convulsed with laughter, by the ready wit of the Irishman. A cross account for damages is claimed by Mr. Langley. As the law is proverbially uncertain the result, which will be known some time to day, cannot be predicted. So far, the judge has decided that Oregon Jack's records of water, which were made in 1863, are good. A large crop of law suits about water is now looming up in the future, owing to some decisions recently given by Judge Walkem, and the court in Victoria. I, with many others, have felt great interest in their actions, and I am pleased to think that my records of water are all right, as tested by the opinions expressed by the bench in the cases already decided.

After the criminal trials were over Mr. Justice Walkem was presented with an address, which does both honor to him and to the grand jury. Some of the grand jurors were anxious that it should appear in all the Victoria papers, and I undertook to send it to THE TIMES. It is as follows:

To the Honorable Mr. Justice Walkem,

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP:

We, the grand jury of Lytton beg leave to congratulate you upon the light calendar presented to you, and also upon the small amount of serious crime in this locality.

With reference to Your Lordship's remarks concerning the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway we fully appreciate the heartfelt interest which you always took, whilst in another sphere of your career, in the carrying out of this great project, and the consummation of which must be a source of pride and gratification to you. We also beg leave to thank you for the interest you have always taken in the welfare of this district and the country at large.

We trust that the railway, when completed, will conduce very largely to the prosperity of the country; and we must rely on our own efforts, to a great extent, for a more extensive opening up of the country in a lateral direction.

The discovery of gold quartz in paying quantities, on Hixon Creek, and the valuable opinions obtained from competent authorities on the subject of mining, as stated by you, will, it is hoped, lead to important discoveries nearer home; and the extensive geological surveys made by the Dominion government this season may also produce valuable results.

Many of us engaged in agricultural pursuits will, no doubt, for some years to come, feel the change which the competition, with more favored lands, will bring upon us, but then we may also hope for more compensating advantages.

We are much pleased to find Your Lordship in such good health, and sincerely hope that you will continue to visit us for many years to come in your exalted capacity.

HENRY F. MACLEOD,
Foreman.

The judge replied by saying that the address was very gratifying and complimentary, both in substance and sentiment; and that he was sure that the loss of the foreman and other civil engineers and employes connected with railway construction, who were on the grand jury, and whose services had, on this and other occasions, been unhesitatingly given, although they could not, and certainly would not, have been enforced, would be much felt by the community. He had noticed, he said, that Mr. MacLeod had been elected at once on this, as on former occasions, to represent his colleagues as foreman—a compliment which would not have been paid, had his jurors not considered that his counsel and advice were well worth securing. For himself he regretted Mr. MacLeod's departure, and trusted, as he was confident the community did, that his merits would be as fully understood and appreciated in his future home as they were here.

Every one in court, so far as I could learn, endorsed this sentiment and Mr. McLeod and those under him may rest assured that their services will prove in this district, as they have done in other parts of Canada, when they quit it, many warm friends who have been made such by their high sense of honor, and their evident desire to help advance the interests of the district even at considerable personal inconvenience to themselves. The judge's further remarks were very practical and to the point. I shall allude to some of them by and by, for they will serve, through your paper to cause many old heads to abandon ideas which will never be realized under the coming order of things. A gold-hunting community, as the judge observed, is notoriously generous and extravagant; and when the yield of gold ceases, unfortunately though generosity must, extravagance does not cease also. New adventurers will be soon forced upon us, and the man, or newspaper, who will give a spur to them will virtually prove a new and a rich mine, and a benefactor who, as a friend in need will prove to be a friend indeed. Besides your available station, allow me to suggest more extensive "Hints to Farmers" which made the Toronto Globe, and a few items on the "Latest Fashions" to please our wives.

ACROSS THE OCEAN.

The Roumelian Difficulty.

Special to THE TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 16.—The Ambassadors have presented a note to the Porte, in which they say further time will have to be allowed them so as to obtain a complete European understanding respecting the Roumelian difficulty, and advise the Sultan to continue his personal policy. They do not, however, dispute the Porte's right to send troops into Roumelia, to assert his right in that province. It is generally believed that the powers have advised Bulgaria, Servia and Greece, more strongly than heretofore, to remain quiet. The Porte's note regarding the armaments of Greece and Servia gave the powers ground to protest against their warlike attitude. The report that Greece had offered to form an alliance with Turkey is unfounded. The ambassadors have adjourned their sittings, but will reassemble shortly, when it is expected they will have received further instructions from their respective governments in relation to their final decision. The Porte considers the note of the ambassadors satisfactory, but has intimated that he will not recognize the Bulgarian union, no matter what the ultimate result of the conference may be. Herr Von Radowitz, German ambassador, and M. Nelidoff, Russian ambassador, have refused to receive M. Petroff and M. Tchamakoff, delegates, who have been commissioned by Prince Alexander to assure the Porte that peace and order reigned in Roumelia.

Threatening Tone of Russia.

Special to THE TIMES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—The Journal de St. Petersburg to-day, in commenting on the Bulgarian question, shows signs of impatience at the delay in settling the difficulty, and says Russia will not submit to the dictation of Karaveloff, the Bulgarian prime minister. If the warning of the ambassadors to Prince Alexander to pacify Roumelia at the risk of losing the union does not make Bulgarians return to Hermos, the French conference to assemble shortly will settle the difficulty on the same basis as the starting point in the present course of action.

Servia Protests—Troops on the Move.

Special to THE TIMES.

BELGRADE, Oct. 16.—Servia has protested against the decisions of the ambassadors on the Roumelian question, and has commenced military operations against the Bulgarians. A large force of Servian troops at five o'clock yesterday afternoon began to move.

Wheat in India.

Special to THE TIMES.

CALCUTTA, Oct. 16.—The difference in prices of wheat in English and home markets, created by the low price of silver and the fall in exchanges affords Indian farmers a profit of 2¼ per cent for lots exported over the cash price for home consumption. This fact has greatly diminished inquiry for freight room for exportation of wheat.

Portugal Seizes French Stations.

WHICH CLASS OF CATTLE.

Hints to Farmers from Prof. Brown, of the Ontario School of Agriculture.

Mr. Brown, Principal of the Ontario School of Agriculture, under the heading "Which Cattle for Ontario?" thus briefly summarizes the results of his experiments: We require cattle directly and indirectly for beef production and cattle for the dairy. * * We are perfectly satisfied that Aberdeen Foll, Hereford and Galloways are not the best for the first purpose, although they are certainly good, and to place them as competitors for the second would be an admission of great ignorance indeed. * * It is not so easy, however, to dismiss the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire and Holstein, but it has to be done. The three first are well enough known in Canada, and require no description now. Neither the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire nor Devon can possibly take the place of direct or indirect beef makers; for the dairy they have strong claims, and hence the difficulty of many in choosing. Were the dairy to become one half of all our agricultural interests, and one-half of our arable area become permanent pasture, we would hesitate in saying good-bye to all these breeds; but will Ontario ever change from her six months' dry fodder and her late frost? We are also still of opinion that Ontario judgment will always admire the fluffy, and better, and cheaper, as seen through the greatest consistent allowance of flesh—aye, even to the disadvantage of the former things, so that could we possibly get all the desired value from an Ayrshire, Jersey, Guernsey, or Devon—their size and form are against them. The special dairy wants of Ontario can be fully maintained by selecting from her common cows—the acclimated, hardy, ranging, milk-body and liberal milking grade. The special beef and the complete beef and dairy wants of Ontario can be best upheld by the use of that stamp of Short Horn—as easy to select and as often met with.

Wm. Saunders, president of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario, has been summoned to Ottawa to confer with the authorities about the proposed exhibition of Ontario fruit at the Indian and Colonial exhibition.

MURDER AT LYTTON.

Edward Holloway, an old Cariboolite Murdered Near Lytton.

Foul Play Suspected—Six Men Arrested and Imprisoned.

Special to THE TIMES

LYTTON, Oct. 16.

A man named Edward Holloway was murdered three miles west of here yesterday afternoon. He was employed as track walker on the C. P. R. His body was found cold, with a bullet hole completely through it. About thirty dollars and a watch was found on him. Foul play is suspected. Six men, two whites and four Chinese, were arrested, and on being searched in jail an old-fashioned pistol was found on one of the Chinamen. Another of the prisoners dropped a clasp while waiting to be searched. Holloway is an old Cariboo miner, having spent sixteen years there. He came to Lytton two years ago.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

Presented with Loyal Addresses at Lytton—Hasty Reptiles.

Special to THE TIMES.

LYTTON, Oct. 16.—His Excellency and suite, with the Lieut.-Governor and lady reached Lytton at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Indians fired a royal salute and he was presented with an address of welcome by Mr. Gillies, on behalf of the town and district. The reply was fluent and a manly one. Then all went to the new Indian church, when Indians under Chief Spzamtum and Michele were assembled in the church. Mr. Small, English Episcopal missionary presented an address on behalf of the Indians, Michele interpreting. The Governor's reply was excellent. He advised the Indians to be industrious and the chiefs to elevate their tribes, and above all to stop the use of intoxicants. The government would be informed of their wants, and would doubtless assist educating them. He hoped they would cope with the white race, who wished to see them succeed, and he told them that the religion they were being taught was Christianity, the same as that of the Queen, their great mother, who was the head of the church. He said much more to them, and thanked them for the welcome and promising to send them a good organ, when he got home as a memento of his visit. The Indians cheered the party, which then went by a special. The Governor invited Judge Walkem to join him. The Governor was Mr. McLeod's guest all night at Drynoch. Judge Walkem got off at Spences Bridge; the Lieut.-Governor got off at Ashcroft. This morning the party passed through Kamloops about ten o'clock, and is now on its way to Siwamos Narrows, where the party will stay to-night.

The Ohio Election.

Special to THE TIMES.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 16.—The complete unofficial returns makes the total 331,201 for Foraker, and 315,513 for Hoadley; Foraker's majority, 17,688.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 16.—The returns on the legislative ticket continue indefinite, owing to uncertainty as to the result in Hamilton Co. The Republicans claim four senators and nine representatives in this county, and the Democrats claim the whole delegation, four senators and ten representatives. Only an official count can determine it. Omitting Hamilton, the most analysis that can be made is that the Republicans have elected to the house 58 members, the Democrats 41, doubtful Stark county one senator. Omitting Hamilton county the returns show Republicans 17, Democrats 15. The twenty first district, which is given to Republicans in the above count, is not conceded by the Democrats.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

MR. S. J. LANE, ex-M. P., has been appointed Junior Judge of the County Court for the county of Grey, Ontario.

THE Welland, Ont., Tribune claims distinction for that town as being the only place of its size in Canada where JOHN SMITH has no local habitation.

THE liabilities of HEATH & Co., and H. N. SMITH, Wall street brokers, are variously estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

THE "city" of London has an area of one square mile, while the metropolis of London has an area of 120 square miles. In the city proper land is very dear, having been sold at the rate of $15,000,000 an acre.

TORONTO Mail: Our growth in the past has been wonderful; what shall be the tale in 1991? Old Canada will then be overshadowed by the Northwest—but it is useless to attempt to pry into the future.

IT is announced in Brussels that the German Lieutenant WISSMANN, who is in the service of the African Association, has discovered that the river Kassai, which was always believed to join the Congo above the equator station, forms a curve and falls into Lake Leopold II.

A few days ago LORD LOVAT shot the heaviest stag that has been killed in the Highlands for many years past, in his forest near Beaufort Castle. It weighed twenty-four stone, and had fourteen points. The horns were magnificent, being upwards of three feet in length.

ARCTIC explorer LIEUTENANT GREELY will have the opportunity of exploring all Scotland at the expense of the Edinburgh Geographical Society, that association having arranged to show him everything worth seeing in the country without the cost of a shilling to himself.

THE four-masted ship owned by Hon. A. W. MCLELAN, minister of marine, launched at Londonderry, Nova Scotia, is the first four-masted ship launched in Canada, and the second in North America. Three of her four masts will be square rigged, and she will carry in all twenty-one yards and spread 8000 yards of canvas.

THE executive committee of the Ontario branch of the Dominion alliance was held last week. A declaration of principle to be recommended as a test of local unions was adopted. It pledged the members to support for educational, municipal, and parliamentary positions, only candidates who are known and professed prohibitionists, and who will vote for the enacting, sustaining and enforcing of prohibitory legislation.

THE Chicago Canadian American says: Some funny stories are told us of the extent and variety of the medical and hospital supplies sent to the Saskatchewan last spring by the Militia Department at Ottawa. One thousand five hundred beds were provided for hospital purposes, though there were only 5000 soldiers on the war path. Amongst the most thoughtful acts, however, of the department was the sending out of several dozen stomach pumps, which had they fallen into the hands of Poundmaker, would probably have been taken for juvenile Gatlings. This was not their fate, however. They were saved to the country and were probably used on the poor unfortunates who were knocked out in one round by ARMOUR's canned beef.

THE Seattle Post-Intelligencer says: It seems to be the general opinion of the press that Attorney-General GARLAND's explanation of his connection with the suit against the Bell Telephone Company is unsatisfactory. This opinion is not confined to the Republican and independent press, but is shared by such Democratic journals as the New York World and Sun. Independent of the suit, there is a curiosity to know the nature of the service which MR. GARLAND, then a United States Senator, was expected to render to the Pan Electric Company in consideration of the $1,500,000 of stock which was transferred to his name. If MR. GARLAND had been a private citizen, would he have received this munificent gift? Scarcely. If not, was his position and influence as a Senator being purchased by the Pan Electric jobbers? The entire transaction has an ugly look, and it is safe to say that MR. GARLAND does not stand nearly so high in public opinion as he did a month ago.

THE BALLOT IN GREAT BRITAIN.

A few years ago, when the ballot act was passed by the British Parliament, by many it was argued that the folded bit of paper must necessarily protect the poor dependent voter from the inquisitorial tactics of his employer, and that he would thus actualize his choice without fear of vengeance which might take the form of instant dismissal. This impression in England, as elsewhere, has been found to be an erroneous one, for the secret ballot has not only not protected the voter in the exercise of his political convictions, but a large amount of corruption has been engendered through the buying and selling of ballots. Since the franchise act of MR. GLADSTONE has been passed, which admits of a large number of new voters, chiefly agriculturists, there has arisen a discussion involving a question of casuistry as to the right of a proprietor to question his laborer how he has voted and as to the obligation of a laborer to yield up his secret to the employer. Already it is understood that proprietors who own vast estates have systematically signalized the way in which the agricultural laborer shall cast his vote. As the ballot was expressly established to provide secrecy on this point, the right of the voter to preserve discreet silence cannot admit of a doubt. The Bishop of Carlisle, among others, and the London Times have set forth that the voter who answers his questioner to please him and votes to please his conscience is guilty of "political lying." Under existing circumstances there will, at the next general election in the United Kingdom, be a large amount of this "political lying," for it is reasonable to suppose that such men as JOSEPH ARCH and MR. CHAMBERLAIN have not labored in vain with the multitude, especially as to their theory of tenant right and the disposition of the large landed estates. The theory of free elections in England and our country is that the voter is a free agent, and that he gives his suffrages according to the dictates of his convictions and concience. The practice in both countries is another matter. The ideal free election has not been reached, and will not be reached so long as there is a distinct class of professional politicians, who utilize their spare time in bringing a certain pressure to bear upon voters. In our country we have special laws to prevent the coercion and intimidation of voters, which, over completely the case of an employer with a large number of dependent employees whose votes he would concentrate to advance his own interests. Yet, in spite of the laws, the process of coercion goes on more or less, during every campaign and every election, and the secret ballot becomes too often the engineer of individual interest. To correct this abuse seems impossible when population is congested in commercial and manufacturing centers. It is, in fact, a moral question, after all, which proprietors, landed or manufacturing, or commercial, must settle with their own consciences. The theory of free elections is imposing and beautiful, but stringent laws backing it have failed to actualize its beneficence to the desired extent. In England the agricultural laborer, just born to the ballot, will be generally under the thumb of the Tory proprietor, and his slender hold on his bread and butter will prove a powerful inducement for him to vote as his master directs or to deceive him by the special form of political lying indicated by the bishop of Carlisle. He may argue as he grows to the knowledge of political tactics that if his superiors lie to him about the effect of voting contrary to their dicta, he is justified in doing a little political lying about the ballot he has handled in the polling booth.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN AS AN ORATOR.

The Pall Mall Gazette referring to MR. CHAMBERLAIN's Glasgow speech, says: All reasonable men, whether they dislike or admire MR. CHAMBERLAIN's views, must agree that he has developed into a public speaker of the first order. The speech at Glasgow on Tuesday deserves, as far as style and effectiveness are concerned, to be placed side by side with his last effort at Warrington, as the high-water mark of MR. CHAMBERLAIN's platform oratory. There is no other Liberal except MR. GLADSTONE who comes anywhere near him as a speaker to great audiences, and his priority is becoming more marked every day. It would almost seem as if the other Liberals of the first rank had given up competing with him in despair. He has been of the foremost for some years now, but never till the present autumn has he occupied a position of such solitary prominence as now. He is a new instance of the old saying that genius is merely an unlimited capacity for taking pains. MR. CHAMBERLAIN has a genius for popularity. But then he has worked hard to make himself a popular speaker, and now that he has caught the public ear he works harder to keep it than any other statesman on the Liberal side. And as popularity is at present the one road to power, the outcome is obvious.

A SYNDICATE of prominent newspaper men have invested $250,000 in a type-setting machine, which is said to promise marvellous results. It is claimed that anyone capable of using a type-writing machine will be able to set type and stereotype at the same time type required for the printing of a newspaper.

IN LUCK AT LAST

BY WALTER BESANT.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

"You can tell by the look and feel of the paper; they did not make paper like this twenty years ago; besides, look at the water mark;" he held it to the light, and Iris read the mystic words. "That is the fashion of to-day. One hears leams a new kind of paper, with a fancy name, and another imitates them. To-morrow I will ascertain exactly when this paper was made."

"But who would steal it, Arnold? Who could steal it?"

"It would not probably be of the least use to anyone. But it might be stolen in order to sell it back. We may see an advertisement carefully worded, guarded, or perhaps — Iris, who had access to the place when your grandfather was out?"

"No one but James, the shopman. He has been here five-and-twenty years. He would not, surely, rob his old master. No one else come here except the customers and Cousin Joe."

"Joe is not, I believe, quite——"

"He is a very bad man. He has done dreadful things. But then, even if Joe were bad enough to rob the safe, how could he get at it? My grandfather never leaves it unlocked. Oh, Arnold, Arnold, that all this should fall upon us on the very day——"

"My dear, is it not better that it should fall upon you when I am here, one more added to your advisers? If you have lost a fortune I have found one. Think that you have given it to me."

"Oh, the fortune may go," she said. "The future is ours, all we are young. But who shall console my grandfather in his old age for his bankruptcy?"

"As the stream," said Lala Roy, "which passeth from the mountains to the ocean, bleeth every meadow on its way, yet carries not in any place, so Fortune visits the sons of men; she is unstable as the wind; who shall hold her? Let not adversity tear off the wings of hope."

They could do nothing more. Arnold replaced the paper in the packet and gave it to Iris; they put back the ledgers and account books in the safe and locked it up, and then they went upstairs.

"You shall go to bed, Iris," said Arnold, "and you, too, Lala Roy. I shall stay here in case Mr. Emblem should—should want anything."

He was, in reality, afraid that "something would happen" to the old man. His sudden loss of memory, his loss of self-control when he spoke of his bankruptcy, the confusion of his words, told clearly of a mind unhinged. He could not go away and leave Iris with no better protection than one other weak old man.

He remained, but Iris sat with him, and in the silent watches of the night they talked about the future.

Under every roof are those who talk about the future, and those who think about the past; so the shadow of death is always with us and the sunshine of life. Not without reason in the Roman Catholic altar incomplete without a bone of some dead man. As for the thing which had been stolen, that affected them but little. What does it matter—the loss of what was promised last five minutes since?

It was one o'clock in the morning when Lala Roy left them. They sat at the window, hand-in-hand, and talked. The street below them was very quiet; now and then a late cab broke the silence, or the tramp of a policeman, but there were no other sounds. They sat in darkness because they wanted no light. The hours spent too swiftly for them. At five the day began to dawn.

"Iris," said Arnold, "leave me now, and try to sleep a little. Shall we ever forget this night of sweet and tender talk?"

When she was gone he began to be aware of footsteps overhead in the old man's room. What was he going to do? Arnold walked at the door. Presently the door opened, and he heard careful steps upon the stairs. They were the steps of Mr. Emblem himself. He was fully dressed, with his usual care and neatness; his black silk stock buckled behind, and his white hair brushed.

"Ah, Mr. Arbuthnot," he said, cheerfully, "you are early this morning!" as if it was quite a usual thing for his friends to look in at six in the morning.

"You are going down to the shop, Mr. Emblem?"

"Yes, certainly—to the shop. Pray come with me."

Arnold followed him.

"I have just remembered," said the old man, "that last night we did not look on the floor. I will have one more search for the letter, and then, if I cannot find it, I will write it all out—every word. There is not much, to be sure, but the story is told without the names."

"Tell me the story, Mr. Emblem, while you remember it."

"All in good time, young man. Youth is impatient."

He drew up the blind and let in the morning light; then he began his search for the letter on the floor, going on his hands and knees, and peering under the table and chairs with a candle. At length he desisted.

"I put it up," he said, "with the parcel with red tape. Very well—we must do without it. Now, Mr. Arbuthnot, my plan is this. First, I will dictate the letter. This will give you the outlines of the story. Next, I will send you to—to my old customer, who can tell you my son-in-law's real name. And then I will describe his coat of arms. My memory was never so clear and good as I feel it today. Strange that last night I seemed, for the moment, to forget everything! Ha, ha! Ridiculous, wasn't it? I suppose—— But there is no accounting for these queer things. Perhaps I was disappointed to find nothing in the packet. Do you think, Mr. Arbuthnot, that——" Here he began to tremble. "Do you think that I dreamed it all? Old men think strange things. Perhaps——"

"Let me try to remember the letter, Mr. Emblem."

"Yes, yes—certainly—the letter. Why it was—alarm!—as follows——"

Arnold laid down the pen in despair. The poor old man was mad. He had poured out the whole farrago without sense, coherence, or story.

"So much for the letter, Mr. Arbuthnot," he was mad without doubt, yet he knew Arnold, and knew, too, why he was in the house. "Ah, I knew it would come back to me. Strange I did not. Why, I read that letter once every quarter or so for eighteen years. It is a part of my life. I shall not forget it."

"And the name of your son-in-law's old friend?"

"Oh, yes, the name!"

He gave some name, which might have been the lost name, but as, Mr. Emblem changed it the next moment, and forgot it the moment after, it was doubtful, certainly not much to build upon.

"And the coat of arms?"

"We are getting on famously, are we not? The coat, sir, was as follows."

He proceed to describe an impossible coat—a coat which might have been drawn by a man absolutely ignorant of science.

All this took a couple of hours. It was now eight o'clock.

"Thank you, Mr. Emblem," said Arnold, "we have no doubt now that we shall soon have Iris in her own again, in spite of your loss. Shall we go upstairs and have some breakfast?"

"It is all right, Iris," called the old man, gaily. "It is all right. I have remembered everything, and Mr. Arbuthnot will go out presently and secure your inheritance."

Iris looked at Arnold.

"Yes, dear," she said. "You shall have your breakfast. And then you shall tell me all about it when Arnold goes; and you will take a holiday, won't you—because I am twenty-one to-day?"

"And!" his was quite cheerful and mirthful, because he had recovered his memory. "Aha, my dear, all is well! You are twenty-one, and I am seventy-five; so! Mr. Arbuthnot will go and bring home the—the inheritance. And I shall sit here all day long. It was a good dream that came to me this morning, was it not? Quite a voice from Heaven, which said: 'Get up and write down the letter while you remember it.' I got up; I found by the—by the merest accident, Mr. Arbuthnot on the stairs, and we have arranged everything for you—everything."

Description of the Mexican Cart—Tossing a Stone—Soap as Currency.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

A Pittsburg gentleman, who visited the "Land of the Montezumas" a few years ago, related to the writer in a recent conversation some of the strange sights and incidents which he witnessed while there. The Mexican cart, as he described it, is, or was, probably, the most singular vehicle that ever was evolved since the barbarous ages. Neither iron nor steel enters into its composition, nor does the workmen use spokeshave, plane, or sandpaper in its construction. The only materials he requires are cottonwood and rawhide, and the only tool an ax. Two blocks, round or oblong, it makes but little difference which, form the wheels. Through these he burns holes for the axeltree. The body of the cart consists of poles or flat strips of timber, fastened together with rawhide. A rough pole serves for a tongue. When in motion the the wheels wabble in every direction but the right one, and for want of grease groan so as to be heard for miles. Breakdowns are so frequent that the roads are lined with wrecks of these primitive vehicles.

Near a spring or water-hole in the state of Durango, many years ago, was found a large stone, the only one in the vicinity. It was very heavy, but a muleteer came along who had strength enough to lift it and throw it over his head. It fell in the direction of the city of Mexico. Since then every able bodied native regards it as a religious duty to give the stone a toss toward the capital. When our informant was there he was told that the stone had been advanced forty or fifty miles on its journey. If the same rate of progression is maintained, the stone may reach its journey's end by the beginning of the next century.

Soap poles were said to be a legal tender in one or two of the southern counties of Indiana before the war. Soap served a like purpose in Queretaro when our informant was there. He bought some fruit from a little girl, and handed her $1 from which to take her pay. She counted out a number of cakes of soap, wrapped them in brown paper, and passed them over as change for the dollar. Protest was useless. It was the recognized currency of the place. The cakes were probably two inches long by one and a half wide, bore the official stamp of the town where issued and also the name of the manufacturer. They were good for their face value as long as the stamp was visible.

Outwitting Their Captors.

(Chicago Times.)

When the late Sir Harry Parkes was a captive in China during the troubles of 1860 he and his comrade, Mr. Loch, were ordered to write a note to the British envoy, Lord Elgin, stating that they were well treated, though they were undergoing confinement in a loathsome prison, and had been loaded down with heavy chains. The note was written in Chinese by command, but the gentleman in signing it managed to convey an idea of their real situation by a message in Hindoostanee introduced about their signatures, which looked like so many twirls and flourishes.

In answer to this note, together with a bundle of clothes, was received by the prisoners after a week had elapsed. The answer contained nothing of importance, and the presence of the Chinese guard prevented an examination of the clothes. But during the night Sir Henry simulated an attack of cholera, and insisted that the guards should carry him into the open air. They finally consented, and during their absence Mr. Loch found a message worked in red thread on the tail of one of the shirts the bundle contained. It had been stitched by Lord John Hay, who had been taught to embroider by his mother, and read: "Will attack in three days. Where are you?"

Interesting to Capitalists.

(Wall Street News.)

A Philadelphia oil broker, who was in northern Michigan a few days ago, struck a town where an enterprising citizen had been boring away at a well for the past four months. The Philadelphian went over to see the bore, and said to the man:

"As there isn't one chance in a thousand that you will find either oil or salt, let me ask what you are boring for?"

"Well," replied the man, after seeming to think it over, "I started in for mineral water, but as a Boston man came along and offered to put in $7,000 cash, I'm drilling away to use up his capital."

Another Misstatement Nailed.

(Kansas Herald.)

Contrary to the general belief Francis Scott Key did not write the "Star Spangled Banner" while "confined as a prisoner on an English man-of-war." He wrote it on his own boat, to which he was sent while the bombardment was in progress. He was not a prisoner but rather a guest of the British admiral, having visited the fleet to secure the release of a relative."

Making Sea Water Drinkable.

(Exchange.)

Thomas Kay, of Stockport, England, has found a process for making sea water drinkable. His process is to remove the chlorides by the use of citrate of silver. One ounce of citrate of silver will make half a pint of sea water drinkable. He proposes that bottles of citrate of silver be placed in the life boats of ships.

An Old St. Louis Legend.

(Exchange.)

An old legend of St. Louis is revived, which says that the ground on which the Southern hotel was built was owned by a poor and aged Frenchwoman, who was dispossessed of her humble home, which stood on its site, by the city's march of progress, far back in the early days of the settlement.

This Year's Railroads.

So far this year only 434 miles of new railroad have been constructed, of which 5 per cent lie in the southern states, Texas and Florida. The construction of 1885 is about one sixth of that of 1884 in the corresponding period.

A Good Suggestion.

(Rhode Island.)

A New York banker suggests that as a precaution against embezzlement every bank should have an album containing the photographs of every employe from president to janitor.

Tea by Proxy.

Doctors say that people who left off drinking beer and took to tea have in many instances, abused the latter, and are troubled with what is known as "tea dyspepsia."

Three western insane asylums provide time accommodations for their mild patients during July and August.

CROSSON—In this city, on the 15th inst., in the 80th year of his age, James Crosson, a native of the County of Tyrone, Ireland.

☞ Intimation of funeral hereafter.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Attention is directed to the special notice of the Victoria Theatre in to-night's Times. Boxes of 4 seats can be had at $1.50 per seat, and chairs in the parquette at $1.25 each.

—Tickets for the unreserved seats in the gallery, for to-night's entertainment may be secured at the box office of the theatre. From the gallery an excellent view is to be obtained of the stage. In this respect it is preferred to any other part of the house by many.

—The Yale unions are being held to-day.

—The Spartan will carry about 300 celestials across the Pacific.

—The municipality of Richmond is building three new bridges.

—St. Peter's Church, New Westminster, is rapidly approaching completion.

—Before purchasing Real Estate or insuring your life, see Rand Bros.

—Dufour & Co. announce an auction sale of household furniture to be held at their mart to-morrow.

—The survey of the branch line of the C. P. R. from Coquitlam to New Westminster, will be completed in a few days.

—The case against Olaff Christiansen, charged with assisting seamen to desert was adjourned until Monday next.

—Mr. Mutrie, of Port Moody, is erecting a building at Coal Harbor, intended for a store and dwelling.

—The body of one of the unfortunate Chinamen, run down by the Yosemite some time since, has been recovered at the mouth of the Fraser river.

—Mr. Edward Meinkie, a well known citizen of New Westminster, a native of Berlin, Ont., died last week in the Royal city.

—A Chinaman was "held up"—or rather was "held down"—by a couple of foot-pads last evening and robbed of 25 cents.

—The fence on the south side of the government grounds, James Bay, is to be replaced by a new one.

—The Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works calls for tenders for the erection of a frame building for a school house at Nanaimo.

—The firm of Messrs. J. A. R. Homer & Son, of New Westminster, has been dissolved by the withdrawal of Mr. F. Homer. The business will be carried on as formerly by Mr. Homer, senior.

—Colonel Creed Haymond, head of the Central Pacific law department, San Francisco, denies the truth of the telegram which stated that the Oregon and California road had been purchased by the C. P. R.

—Mr. O. B. Ackerman, of Upper Samas, writes the Columbian a letter referring to the late Chilliwhack exhibition and the number of drunken men that were observable during that and the following day.

—Consignees by Geo. E. Starr to-day: W Tinson, V Gill, Burns & Co, Z S Hall, J Cunningham, J Sehl, H Saunders, Matthews, Richards & Tye, T Earle, Osborn & Alexander, E G Prior, S J Pitts, W B Smith, A Oliver, M W Waitt, C Strouse, Marvin & Tilton, J Parker.

—The team attached to the Empire Brewery wagon ran away on Yates street to-day. When turning the corner at the Adelphi the wagon upset, and bottles, barrels and beer, "all mingling fell" in the gutter. The horses were stopped shortly afterwards. The damage done was trifling.

—Letters are detained for postage at this P. O., addressed:—Mrs Frank Turner, Dorchester, Mass; Miss Davis, San Francisco, Cal.; Wm Finlay, Cowichan, V. I.; — Argyle, Race Rocks, V. I.; Mrs P C Dunlevy, Soda Creek, B. C.; Wah Lung, Port Hammond, B. C.; Gam Yanc, Wellington, B. C.

—On Friday of last week, the Columbian says, eighteen persons arrived from eastern Canada, principally from the counties of Stanstead and Sherbrooke, P. Q., and took up their abode in New Westminster and neighborhood. They make considerable complaint of the treatment accorded them by some of the N. P. R. officials.

—It is quite necessary to remind the public that the theatre will be open to-night, as all the seats are now taken. A few more however, may still be accommodated by the seats placed in the aisles. The same performance will be repeated at the matinee to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and again in the evening. As the performers are all local amateurs, and their rendition of the "Pirates" is understood to be of a first-class character, each one of the three entertainments will no doubt be crowded. Local talent, like home industries, should be liberally encouraged.

—The sensitiveness of the New Westminster people received a rude shock, according to the Columbian, when the Governor-General passed by, while on his way to Victoria, without so much as saying "good morning, gentlemen." People are naturally so prone to do homage to the great, or the exalted by birth, or position, that they are not ashamed to take offence at being deprived of the opportunity. However, His Excellency visited the Royal City on his way east and met with a hearty and generous reception, in which there was much less flunkyism and obsequiousness than might have prevailed had the visit been made immediately after arriving on the coast. His Excellency is an iconoclast.

—The Colonist's editorial of a few days ago, declaring that the people of this province were without a grievance—that everything in our commercial, social and political life was as serene, contented and as perfect as an eternal holiday in the "Utora of Daphne"—has disgusted the discontented and brought the writer thereof into still greater ridicule and contempt. The Guardian, which among its failings is not chargeable with hypocrisy, says: "Nine-tenths of the men His Excellency saw in the province have grievances innumerable to complain of. The Coal Harbor syndicate of Ministerial land stealers is a grievance, John Robson is a hook-nosed grievance, Smithe a limping grievance, Davie a legal grievance, and Duck a nonentity. But every nonentity in office is a grievance. Indeed the people of this province are afflicted by innumerable grievances, but they will save themselves at the next election and say nothing of their misfortunes to the representative of royalty."

Misses and Children's Autumn and Winter Mantles, 20 to 40 inches long, from $1 25 each, at the CITY HOUSE.

Hunt, Bros, real estate brokers, have removed from Yates street to Galpin's new block, Fort street.

POLICE COURT.

(Before R. Johnson, S. M.)

William Miller, on remand from 14th instant, supplying an intoxicant to Indian women. Mr. Smith made a pathetic appeal for the prisoner, but the court couldn't see it in that light and fined $50 and $1 costs or three months.

ALLEGED FORGERY.

Cumyow, on remand from the 30th Sept. and the 8th instant, on two charges of forgery, preferred by Mr. E. M. Johnson. Mr. Wilson appeared for the defence, and Mr. Johnson conducted the prosecution.

Mr. E. M. Johnson, sworn—On the 26th March last, Cumyow purchased horses and a wagon from Wah Chung of Seattle, and in part payment therefor gave certain promissory notes, of which I now produce one, falling due on 26th Sept., 1885. The former notes were not met when due and were handed to me by Wah Chung, for collection, along with the one produced. Applied to Cumyow for payment, and he failed to pay but promised to give additional security if I would hold over the notes, offering the endorsement of his firm, King Tye & Co. On or about the 20th of August last he endorsed the note produced in my office with the name of that firm. On the 26th of September I presented the note for payment at the office of King Tye & Co., demanding payment from them as endorsers. The book-keeper said that he knew nothing whatever about it, and referred me to Wong Soy Chu, one of the principals of the firm, who also refused to pay the note. The note is still unpaid, but has been duly protested, and notice served on King Tye & Co. I am acting in this matter, as agent for Wah Chung, under power of attorney.

Cross-examined:—I won't swear to the book-keeper's name, but I will swear to the book-keeper; I think his name is Sing Sam. I know him personally; he can speak some English; an interpreter was present. My information about the purchase of the horses was derived from the bill of sale, which is produced.

Wong Soy Chu, sworn: I am proprietor of two stores, King Tye Co. and Tai Soong Co. There are nine shares in the business of King Tye Co., of which Leung Nan owns one, Teo Kan one and myself the remaining seven. Cumyow was not a partner and was not interested in the profits of the firm. He was paid a salary, and he had no authority to endorse the firm's name to transactions of his own. I did not pay the note because it was a transaction between Mr. Johnson and Wa Chung. I discharged Cumyow because he was hurting my affairs. In a conversation with Cumyow, since his first arrest, I asked him why he said he was a partner in our store, and he said he had to do it to clear himself. (The books of the firm were produced and a paper presented by Cumyow to witness.)

Death of Mr. Jas. Crosson.

Another pioneer has joined the majority. Mr. James Crosson, merchant, Yates street, died rather suddenly on Thursday night, of cancer of the stomach, aged 66 years. Deceased was an Irishman by birth, having been born at Holly Hill, county Tyrone. He emigrated to America while still a young man. After a residence in the eastern and southern States, he came to Victoria in the early days, and for many years conducted a grocery business at the corner of Douglas and Yates streets, on the stand now occupied by Mr. Jewell. Business prospered with him and in a few years he acquired a competency. Afterwards he left British Columbia for a time, but returning again once more engaged in trade. Deceased applied himself very closely to business throughout his long residence in the city, and has always been recognized as a careful and honest merchant. He leaves a wife and two daughters to lament his loss. During the last two months he had been complaining about the state of his health, but he did not think his illness at all dangerous, and the services of a doctor were not secured until a short time before his death, when Dr. Dearden was summoned. The doctor at once pronounced his condition critical, and he quickly sank into his last and final sleep. With his removal another of the venturous spirits of '49 has passed away, and still another gap has been left in the ranks of the early pioneers.

Come for Morgan.

Sheriff Jones, of Beaverhead Co., Montana, arrived in the city to-day, with the evidence against the prisoner Morgan, held here for extradition on a charge of murder. The prisoner was this afternoon further remanded until Monday next. The murder is said to have been a cold-blooded one. Three or four people were returning from a dance and were accosted by a man on the road, who, coming within a few feet of them, discharged the contents of a gun he carried into the body of his victim. The motive that prompted the deed is understood to have been jealousy, or vengeance for wrongs, real or imaginary, which the murdered man had inflicted on his murderer.

Is it Highway Robbery?

On Thursday afternoon a resident of North Park street telephoned for his Chinese boy to come down town with his market basket. At the corner of Douglas and Yates streets John was captured by two young men and taken into a barn on Yates street, where his pockets were rifled, seventy-five cents being secured. A wooden box was held over the boy's head and his clothing was torn during the investigation by the two sportive white men. In justice to the latter, it should be stated that they deny taking anything from John, while admitting that they had some "sport" with him. The matter is likely to figure in the police court.

Bearing Fruit.

The anti-Chinese agitation at Tacoma is bearing fruit. The Ledger says that one of the Chinese bosses has informed the Chinese employed as cooks, etc., on the Olympian to notify the steward to fill their places with other help and to take their departure. The advice has been taken and notice of their intention to leave has been given. The coolies are coming in from the adjacent country and taking their departure for Portland, while many are tramping south on the railway track.

Morgan, the Alleged Murderer.

Sheriff Jones, of Dillon county, Montana, arrived this morning by the Sound steamer, bearing with him papers and legal documents relating to the prisoner Morgan, the alleged Montana murderer, whose trial has been remanded from time to time during the past three months by our authorities. The case will come up for trial on Monday before the Chief Justice. Application will be made for Morgan's extradition.

To-Night's Entertainment.

In the "Pirates of Penzance or the Slave of Duty," the dramatis personæ is as follows: Richard, (a pirate chief) Mr. E. G. Prior; Samuel, (his lieutenant) Mr. S. Wootton; Fred'k, (a pirate apprentice) Mr. E. White; Major-General Stanley of the British Navy, Mr. C. Lombard; Edward, (a sergeant of police), Mr. H. Kent; Mabel, (General Stanley's daughter), Miss M. Heatlfield; Kate, Edith, Isabel, daughters of General Stanley, Mrs. West, Miss C. Cameron, Miss M. V. Storey; Ruth, (a pirtical maid-of-all-work), Mrs. Jay. Pirates, policeman, etc., in countless numbers. Scene—Act I Seashore on the coast of Cornwall; Act II. General Stanley's estate.

During the interval between the first and second acts, an old English Minuet as performed in the opera of Don Giovanni will be danced by sixteen young ladies in costume of the period, with new costumes specially designed and arranged for this occasion, all under the supervision of Mrs. Chudley. This will be a feature of the evening. As full dress will be the order of the evening with most of the audience, it will lend a tone of brilliancy and eclat to this auspicious event.

Theatre Comique.

This popular amusement resort was again well patronized last night, and the performance throughout gave general satisfaction. The songs and dances of Miss Kattie Goodwin and the character changes of Riley and Farn were the leading attractions. The programme contains nothing of an exceptional character, and the company is a very good one throughout.

Sailing Away the Coolies.

The bark Spartan has been fitted up with a double tier of berths for her cargo of coolies, who will probably go on board to-morrow. Each berth has been labeled with the number or name of the occupant, and there is accommodation for about 400. About 350 will take passage to Hongkong, and the bark will sail on Monday.

Kriemler Farm Purchased.

"Lord" John Russell has purchased the "Strawberry Vale," or Kriemler Farm, at the head of Victoria arm, comprising 280 acres, for the sum of $13,000. We understand that Mr. Russell will dispose of his horses and carriages, and go into stock raising for which the farm is admirably adapted.
